Nathaniel (Nathan) Hofman joined Moore Ingram Johnson & Steele, LLP in 2020, as an associate in the firm's Litigation Department. He practices primarily in the areas of civil litigation and liability defense.

Born in Minneapolis, Minnesota, Nathan received his undergraduate degree from Saint John's University in 2013. He obtained his J.D. from Marquette University, where he graduated with honors in 2016. While in law school, Nathan was the vice president of the Student Bar Association, was a research assistant to Professor Jay Grenig, and was a judicial intern at the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

Before joining Moore Ingram Johnson & Steele, Nathan spent three years working in the Atlanta area as a liability defense attorney, representing individuals and businesses in auto-accident, professional negligence, premises liability, and commercial litigation matters. Nathan has also represented State employees in 42 USC 1983 actions.

Nathan lives in Smyrna, Georgia with his fiancé Kathryn and their dog Hawkeye (M.A.S.H.). In his spare time, he enjoys making BBQ, hiking, shooting sports, and spending time with family and friends.
